

Senior Superlative voting for the Class of 2019 underway

Every school year, The Antenna yearbook holds a vote for senior class superlatives. The superlatives include multiple categories in which a male and a female senior student are selected. Winners from each category have their picture taken and featured in the yearbook.

“Superlatives are really just a fun way to have students interact with and choose who goes in the yearbook by voting,” Co-Editor in Chief of The Antenna Ruth Seyoum said. “The seniors really enjoy voting and campaigning on places like social media to be selected for one of the categories.”

Voting this year will take place via a Google Form which was made available earlier this week on The Antenna twitter page.

The categories available in the superlatives this year are: Best Hair, Class Clown, Most Athletic, Most School Spirited, Most Likely to Succeed, Best Glow-Up and Worst Case of Senioritis. Both a boy and a girl senior student will be selected for each category.

Seniors have already taken to social media to campaign and convince fellow students to vote for them in a superlative category.

“I really have been working hard on my hair recently with one year of experimenting and now I’m in the growing phase and trying to have the best locks that I can,” senior Cort Hollis said. “Senior superlatives were always on my mind but when they came around this year, I thought that I needed to win Best Hair because my golden locks need recognition.”

A number of other seniors are looking to come away with categories such as “Most Talented” or “Most Likely to Succeed.”

“I’m going for most talented because of my trumpet skills,” senior Samuel Berhe said.

Voting through the Google Form will be open throughout next week and winners will be announced by the end of the week. Students can vote for senior superlatives here.

“In general, superlatives are a great way to acknowledge the great characteristics of students at school because they get to be recognized for what they are known for,” Hollis said.

Senior Superlative nominations are here

This year’s senior superlative nominees have been announced and final results will come March 17. Senior superlatives is when seniors vote on classmates who best fit different categories. It’s a time where fellow classmates can exaggerate or give hyperbolic expressions of praise.

This year the superlatives were on google form. Students copied a URL in the search engine, then they had to sign in using their student ID. After this process, they could vote for senior superlatives.

“The editors and Mrs. Hanneman count them with the help of Alex [Zernik],” Hall said.

There are many people who feel that the senior superlatives are not accurate. They perceive that many of the nominees are voted upon just because of their popularity.

"I think most of the nominees were accurate, but some weren't. A lot of people like to joke around with them, so some of the answers are really funny," AHS Yearbook organizer Jennifer Hall said.

There are a lot of categories for this year's superlatives, some of the categories include common ones like: best dressed, best social media presence, most spirited, class clown, best lookalike, most sleep deprived, best to take home to your parents and most athletic.

Some of the nominees include: Hasham Washimi and Yocias who were nominated for class clown, David Park as best male look alike, and Julie Swenton for best female look alike.

"We choose the categories pretty much based on what they've always been, give or take a few," Hall said.
